WORLD'S BIGGEST EARS!

Clumsy surgeon kills 84 patients in 3 years!

8-year-old mom has 5 children!

He's 8 inches shorter — and getting smaller every day!

Ancient curse shrinks explorer

PARIS — A scientist who meddled in the affairs of a primitive African tribe accidentally unleashed an ancient curse that shrunk him to a fraction of his former size!

Anthropologist Dr. Roger Noblet, 42, of Clermont-Ferrand, France, used to stand 5 feet 9 inches tall. Now he's 5-foot-1 — and getting shorter all the time.

"It's a fascinating case," Dr. Andre Toler told medical reporters in Paris. "We're not talking about the kind of spinal compression and shrinkage that all of us undergo as we get older.

"Dr. Noblet is literally getting smaller from his head to toe — even his vital organs are shrinking.

"It's like something out of Alice in Wonderland.

"And frankly, I don't think there's a doctor anywhere who can help."

The anthropologist's ordeal reportedly began during a field study of an obscure jungle tribe in northwestern Kenya last summer, said newspapers.

He told reporters that the natives treated him quite well in the beginning.

And then for reasons he has yet to understand, they started to act like he had the plague.

"In the end Nguma, the witch doctor, warned that I had meddled in things that should have been left alone," said Dr. Noblet. "I honestly have no idea what he was talking about and he refused to elaborate. All he said was that I 'was cursed by the ancient ones for all time.'"

By the time Dr. Noblet returned to Paris in September, he was a full eight inches shorter than when he left. His friends and colleagues noticed the change and began to poke fun at him, saying that all his clothes were too big.

He eventually sought help from Dr. Toler, who proceeded to treat him with everything from bulk-building steroids to a synthetic human growth factor in an unsuccessful attempt to restore his size and height.

"Nothing works," said Dr. Noblet, "and I feel like I'm losing my mind. A psychiatrist friend of mine assures me that I'm still sane.

"But all he can do is show me ways to cope with the anxiety generated by the loss of my size."

Maybe a zip code would help on letters to God

A huge pile of mail in the Jerusalem post office will never be delivered because it's addressed to God.

"We don't know where to deliver them," said postal worker Moshe Ben-Meir, who said the office gets several thousand such letters every day.

Most letters are addressed to God or Lord Jesus, but one Hebrew writer addressed his letter to Lord of the World, Seventh Heaven, Chair of Glory. To help speed delivery, he put seven airmail stamps on the envelope. Another letter listed nine names and the words, "Accursed are these names. Their crime was Blasphemy against the Holy Spirit."

"This man has been writing for four years. He's a dentist who went crazy," Ben-Meir said.

Some letters are written by lonely women asking God to send them a husband.

Others ask for good health or money.

One teenage girl wrote: "Most exalted and holy one — please make Eran love me. He must love me. He must, he must, he must."

Old-fashioned phones foil dope dealers

Folks in tiny Springfield, Fla., had the phone company replace push-button pay phones with old-fashioned dial ones in areas where drug dealers hang out.

The drug dealers make sales and order deliveries by paging contacts who carry digital beepers. The beepers work only with push-button phones. Civic groups persuaded Southern Bell to remove push-button pay phones from a half dozen areas where drug dealers are known to congregate.

"It was a step backward to solve a problem," said a utility spokesman.

IS IT HUMAN?

FIRST CHILD CONCEIVED IN SPACE!

Month-old star baby sits up, rolls over — and SPEAKS!

SPACE BABY, only two days old in this photo, looks human except for his enlarged cranium.

By BEATRICE DEXTER
Special to The NEWS

Soviet scientists have announced the birth of the first child ever conceived in space — an infant with a giant head that has developed four times as fast as normal and has a super-keen intelligence.

The baby boy, named Vladimir, is the child of cosmonaut Valentina Tereshkov, who became pregnant while she was on a two-month orbital flight around the Earth. Baffled scientists still can't explain how the spacewoman — along with all the other members of her female crew — became pregnant during the mission.

Four of the women spontaneously aborted their fetuses or delivered them stillborn, but Miss Tereshkov's child was born alive July 25 after only nine weeks of gestation.

Physically the star baby is a cranium. He is perfectly healthy, but because his lungs are slightly underdeveloped he has been confined to an incubator.

Intellectually, however, the infant seems remarkably dif-

learned to sit up, roll over and speak simple sentences, according to a statement issued by the Russian space agency.

"He is advancing so rapidly in his development that in most ways he is already like a 2-year-old," said Dr. Victor Nikoladze, one of several specialists who are looking after the space tot.

"Because the origin of the pregnancy is a mystery, we're obviously relieved that the child is essentially human-looking. We're looking into the zarre physical effect of the space experience. But there does remain the possibility that the mother might have been inseminated by a space alien without her knowledge. The child's strange head and abnormally advanced development are something that needs to be explained."

The Soviet space mission during which little Vladimir was conceived was launched April 8 and returned to Earth on July 14. During the orbit, all five crew members re-may have been related to conception of their babies.

Doctors who examined the female cosmonauts discovered their pregnancies after their spacecraft landed. None had been pregnant before the space flight, according to space agency officials. The surprise pregnancies were upsetting at first, but Dr. Nikoladze says new mother Tereshkov is now pleased with her baby son.

"He's her first child, so of course she has a close bond with him."

MOB BOSS WINS LOTTERY!

Red-faced officials must shell out $14M to reputed gangster and his pals!

By FRED WRIGHT
Staff writer

Lottery officials in Massachusetts were left red-faced and speechless when a $14.3 million jackpot was won by reputed crime boss James J. "Whitey" Bulger!

The 61-year-old mobster was named in a President's Commission on Organized Crime report as a "reputed killer, bank robber and drug trafficker" back in 1986.

In addition, he was convicted in 1956 of robbing banks in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Indiana. He served part of a 20-year sentence. Lucky Bulger and his three pals hit the 8-15-32-35-40-42 Mass Millions ticket worth $14,328,960.

Michael C. Linskey of South Boston presented the winning ticket and said he'll get 50 percent of the jackpot.

Linskey told lottery officials the other half will be divided between Bulger, his deputy, Kevin J. Weeks, and Linskey's brother, Patrick.

Bulger will receive 20 annual payments of $89,573.91 after taxes, his share of the pot.

Massachusetts lottery officials are already fielding complaints from citizens who think the drawing was fixed because Bulger won.

And law enforcement officials who have been tracking Bulger for at least two decades reacted with shock.

"It's unbelievable," said one federal official.

The couple are recovering from the transplant operation in Bridgeton, Mo.

call me Dumbo

. . . but you can call me PROUD!

By SCOTTY PAUL
Special correspondent

Gorgeous secretary Gwen Copeland is pretty as a picture except for one giant flaw — her ears are nearly as big as a baby elephant's.

The blue-eyed blonde was born that way and has lived through the taunts and torment that must be accepted by someone who is "different."

"I can't count the nights I've cried myself to sleep because of the cruelty of others," said Gwen, 23, who was reared on a farm southeast of Minot, N.D., and now lives in Florida.

Her enormous ears now measure 4¾" x 3⅝" — big enough for the top spot in the World Book of Anatomical Records. A Dutch mechanic formerly held the world record with 4¼" x 3⅜" ears.

The deeply religious young woman said she has heard every wisecrack in the books since the day she left her parents' farm to start school.

"I've been called 'elephant ears' more times than I can count," she said.

"My classmates kidded me about having the lead part in the movie Dumbo. I can laugh about it now, but I didn't think it was very funny then."

BLONDE BEAUTY used to bow her head to diminish her big-eared appearance, as shown in this driver's license photo.

Gwen joked that some of her relatives didn't know whether she would learn to walk or fly when she was a baby. "No one ever said I was a 'pretty baby' and said it with a straight face," she said.

Gwen, who is engaged to marry her childhood sweetheart next June, still remembers the heartache of going to the state fair in Minot when she was only 11.

"People laughed at me, pointed their fingers everywhere I went. Some of them even thought I was part of the freak show. I tried to hide my ears under my hair. It was horrible."

Plastic surgeons could have solved Gwen's giant problem years ago, but her fundamentalist Christian parents refused to allow it. And now Gwen won't hear of it.

"Doctors say my middle ear and inner ear are normal. It's only the pinna (outer ear) that is oversized. The size and shape of the pinna varies from person to person."

A specialist in otoplasty, a common ear surgery procedure, said it would be relatively easy to reduce the size of her ears. "The pinna is nothing more than cartilage covered with skin and it's relatively insensitive to pain," he said.

Despite her enormous ears, Gwen doesn't hear any better or worse than anyone else. "Doctors have assured me that my problem isn't hereditary.

"I am a creature of God and I will never change any part of His creation," she said.

"I have spoken to many people who are different as I am different. I tell them to stop feeling sorry for themselves, hold their head up high and get on with their lives."

GWEN Copeland on the job. Her advice to others suffering with physical deformities: Keep your head up high and get on with your life.

Real-life witch hosts TV talk show

Guests on a new TV talk show are interviewed by a card-carrying witch in front of an altar of burning candles, chalices, a dagger, a pair of deer antlers, a tiny broom and icons of goddesses.

The host of the show Kestryl & Company is Kestryl Angell, 25, a witch from Laurel, Md. The show appears on a cable channel in suburban Arlington, Va.

Kestryl and her producer, witch, claim to be good witches who reject devil worship and black magic.

The witches hope the program will give people "a deeper understanding of who we are and what we practice, and dispel a lot of myths and misconceptions," Kestryl said.

Wife of Gulf War soldier charged with starving their son to death!

HEARTBROKEN hubby Pvt. William Weaver says he can't understand why she did it.

While Army Private William Weaver was risking his life in Saudi Arabia, his wife was at home 6,000 miles away coldheartedly starving one of their two children to death, say cops!

But police in Fayetteville, N.C., are stumped for a motive for this monstrous deed. And Pvt. Weaver, who jetted home from the Gulf, is just as baffled.

Weaver announced plans for a divorce from his 18-year-old wife and said, "I want to see justice done — true justice done.

"I don't love her anymore."

Authorities are still looking for an explanation behind the deadly cycle of torture that killed tiny 2-year-old T.J. Weaver.

mom Tabatha Weaver didn't have food for the kids. Police found a bottle of milk on a living room table and baby food in the kitchen at the Weaver apartment.

But she unexplainedly withheld food from them both, say authorities.

Five-month-old Jonathan was so badly nourished he weighed just 9 pounds — only 7 ounces more than his birth weight — when cops, responding to a neighbor's call, found him in the Weavers' apartment. Miraculously, Jonathan survived.

Tragic T.J. was not so lucky. He was pronounced dead from chronic malnutrition, starvation and dehydration.

His weight was a mere 23 pounds and he was wearing a diaper so full it hung to his knees.

Tabatha also faces two counts of felony child abuse along with the first-degree murder charges.

SWEET-LOOKING Tabatha Weaver starved her son T.J., left, to death, say cops. Baby Jonathan survived.

Top scientist's shocking revelation:

THESE beauties look hideous to space aliens.

One look at humans like these could kill a space alien

— because THEY think WE'RE ugly!

By MICHAEL TODD
Special correspondent

Human beings are so ugly that a space alien would die or go mad in a face-to-face meeting with any one of us!

That's the opinion of Belgian anthropologist Jane Servais, who says aliens are so high on the evolutionary ladder that they couldn't tell the difference between Miss America and a garden slug!

"The shock of our appearance would be too much for them, especially those composed of pure energy or intellect," Dr. Servais told reporters from her home in Brussels.

"I firmly believe that all future space exploration should be done by unmanned probes and computers.

"Pioneers from Earth simply cannot risk finding an alien civilization only to destroy it with our looks."

Skeptics say Dr. Servais could be short-changing aliens when she cites their lack of tolerance for lower species like Man.

But she claims to have ample support for her theory — including the fact that aliens are known to visit Earth but have never once confronted men on a mass scale.

"Aliens are far superior to us and certainly have nothing to hide," said the expert. "They don't confront us because they can't bear the thought of it. It would be like you or me going into a pitch black cave and trying to talk sense with a thousand squealing bats."

A ban on manned space exploration couldn't be imposed soon enough to suit Dr. Servais!

She thinks it will take decades to undo the damage caused by television signals that constantly carry pictures of humans through space.

"The United States didn't do us much good with its Voyager probes either," she said.

"Even though they are unmanned they are loaded with pictures of humans and plaques that depict not only our ugly bodies, but the primitive schemes of our nervous systems, brains and vital organs as well."

Dr. Servais said that human-shaped life forms are extremely rare in the universe.

"I suspect the odds against us meeting people like ourselves are billions to one," she said. "And that's just as well."

The 21st Century Formulation By The Famous Pharmaceutical Scientist Who Created Hawaiian Tropic Skin Care

Re-Neu is new: The same master scientist who transformed a generation of beauty aids has brought together the astounding benefits of Aloe Vera Gel, collagen, proteins, and amino acids. The result is a totally new composite which combines the two ingredients your skin needs most: softening and remoisturizing.

Re-Neu works. IT WORKS. Test after test on aging skin proves it. And if it doesn't work for you, Re-Neu Laboratories will give you back every cent you paid. You can't lose. You can only win back the youthful beauty you used to have ... and still deserve.

You Feel Young... When You Look Young... And You Can!

You Can!

A Message from C. Ray Henry, President, RE-NEU Creations®

My Dear Friends,

Oh, yes, we do get older. If you had a time machine, you could see your skin getting more wrinkled and leathery every day, every month, every year.

Can science reverse the aging process?

Of course no scientific method can stop the aging process inside your body. But what we can do is restore the youthful look your skin used to have. How well we can do that depends on how much you've abused your skin by too much exposure to sun and wind and chemicals. But regardless, we can do something!

I'm not talking about cosmetic surgery which can leave you looking strange—your mouth stretched and your skin unnaturally tight. I'm not talking about chemical "peeling" which can burn your skin permanently. I'm talking about the wonder-compound, Aloe Vera Gel. It's one (but obviously not the only one) of the key Re-Neu ingredients.

Aloe Vera is as close to a natural miracle as any skin could hope for. My program includes my own Aloe Vera Mask, Aloe Activator and a separate Aloe Moisturizer. The difference is astounding.

When you wash your face, you wash off the cream-mask...but the beautiful results stay!

Do try my Program. I personally stand 100% behind it. I promise you: Your mirror doesn't lie. When you actually see your new radiantly youthful look, you'll bless the day you took advantage of my invitation to try the Re-Neu Program at a special very low price...and at my risk.

For a younger you,

C. Ray Henry

Teen racks up $88,935 in fines for 440 traffic tickets!

DRIVER Richard Canning is off the road and in the pokey now after he was arrested on 440 outstanding traffic tickets.

By FRED WRIGHT
Staff writer

Teenager Richard Canning has racked up an incredible 440 traffic tickets — calling for a whopping $88,935 in fines — over the past four years, all from behind the wheel of his $300 car!

The 19-year-old Philadelphia terror-on-wheels is charged with a variety of traffic violations since 1987. None of them are parking tickets.

Among the citations are 143 tickets for driving without a license, 92 for driving without a registration, 20 for going through red lights and 10 for careless driving, plus another 175 for other assorted violations.

Canning challenged one of the tickets — for driving with a suspended license.

"I never had a license," Canning told the court. "That's why I don't understand how it can be under suspension."

For years, the city's record-keeping system was in shambles and no one knew how many people had how many tickets.

But a fancy new computer helped cops capture Canning after consolidating his paper trail of unpaid tickets. He's in the pokey now awaiting a hearing after bail was set at $80,000.

"I'm as shocked as anybody else that he had so many tickets," says Traffic Court Judge George Twardy. "That's why we went after him."

If convicted, Canning could get more than six years in jail — one day in custody for every $40 he owes.

"How he got a car is beyond me," says an exasperated Judge Twardy.

Canning drives — or drove — for "Geez, he's got his whole neighborhood up in arms," the judge says.

"He'd drive through the streets with loud mufflers and radio blaring."

Canning has the dubious distinction of being Philadelphia's biggest traffic offender by a mile. The next nearest driver on the city's "Most Wanted" list owes a mere $66,000 in tickets.

"The next question is what do we do with him?" Judge Twardy says.

"I can fine him but is he going to pay?"

Rapist superglues victim's lips

A rapist who used superglue on the lips of one of his victims was sentenced to life in prison recently.

Police in London, England, said David Whitney, 30, attacked at least three women in terrified victims's lips together and also raped an 18-year-old retarded girl.

Whitney had previous convictions for indecent exposure and attempted rape.

Boy charges $750G on dad's plastic

A teenage high roller used his dad's credit card to get a $750,000 home loan and fly his friends to plush vacation spots where they dined on lobster and drank champagne.

In his three-month spree entertained his girlfriend in a $1,000-a-night hotel suite, a court was told in London, England.

Acklom, now 18, admitted theft of the credit card and obtaining money, property and the home loan by decep-

'NEVER-SAY-DIE' FAMILY

Courageous parents battle AIDS as brave son fights killer cancer!

By SUSAN JIMISON
Staff writer

Death stalks Raymond Massey and his family: The young dad got AIDS from a transfusion and passed it to his wife, and now one of his two kids has cancer!

Despite their tragic health problems, the amazing Enterprise, Ala., family live a normal life, putting their fate in God's hands. They stay upbeat and optimistic under circumstances that would leave most folks utterly defeated.

"God has a purpose to all this and we'll find it out one day," brave Raymond told The NEWS. "We're dependent on God."

The young family's ordeal began in 1984 when Massey was 18 and was badly injured in a car wreck.

He got a blood transfusion in the hospital and recovered soon afterwards, returning to his job as a fast-food restaurant manager.

Not long afterwards he fell in love with Jo Ann, now 22, and married her. In 1986 a daughter, Courtney, was born. Two years later came a baby son, Cody. And four months after that, tragedy joined the family.

Little Cody was diagnosed with cancer in both eyes, and underwent emergency surgery to remove his right eye. For months afterward he suffered through treatments to halt the spread of the disease in his left eye.

But just as the picture was brightening for little Cody, disaster took a firmer grip on the family.

Massey came down with shingles and sores in his eyes. A doctor examined him and gave him the awful news: He was suffering from the killer AIDS virus, contracted from emergency blood transfusions following his car wreck.

Jo Ann was tested not long afterwards — and the reeling family learned she, too, had AIDS. Drained by medical bills and ill health, the Masseys had to stop work and go to live with Raymond's parents. But since then, there has been good news of sorts: The Masseys' AIDS has not advanced yet. The couple are still feeling well enough to enjoy life together for some time yet.

"It's hard to believe all this happened in six years," Massey says today.

FAMILY'S FATE is in God's hands! Parents Raymond and Jo Ann have AIDS and son Cody lost one eye to cancer, but the courageous Masseys keep going on. Only daughter Courtney, seated, remains free from disease.

much excitement all their lives. You go from having a good job, a nice house and you're floating along just fine, and suddenly the bottom falls out.

"But in spite of our bad luck, we have a lot of things to be thankful for. We have the support of our families, we have each other and we have many precious days together still ahead of us.

"We try to be grateful, not angry. We don't want to waste our remaining time being mis-

PROSTATE PROBLEMS?

Latest Medical and Natural Treatments Revealed

(Special) Prostate trouble is one of the most common afflictions of men. About half of all middle-aged men suffer some kind of Prostate misery such as getting up nights to urinate, frequency, urgency, delay in starting, pain or discomfort. Nearly every man over the age of 80 will suffer prostate symptoms.

A new book called Your Prostate: What Every Man Over 40 Needs To Know Now contains the latest up-to-date information on the Prostate — how it functions, what can go wrong, how it can best be treated, and how to protect yourself from Prostate problems. The book gives you specific facts on the brand new treatments available for Prostate disorders — from new drugs and medical treatments to natural remedies. You'll discover how a specific nutrient is being used to alleviate Prostate symptoms and how one doctor uses a specific combination of vitamins and minerals to help eliminate Prostate miseries. The book even tells you about new drugs and methods being used to combat impotence.

The book covers actual case histories of men who suffered Prostate problems and how they were able to overcome their problems.

Many men are putting up with troublesome Prostate symptoms because they are unaware of new treatments and the welcomed relief that is now available.

Get all the facts. Order Your Prostate: What Every Man Over 40 Needs To Know Now today. This book is being made available for only $12.95 plus $3 postage and handling.

To order send name and address with payment to: United Research Publishers, 103 North Highway 101, Dept. WP-6, Encinitas, CA 92024. You can return the book within 30 days for full refund if not completely satisfied.

PRESIDENT TERMINATOR

MOVIE HERO Arnold Schwarzenegger has been active in Republican politics for years and has the right stuff to go all the way to the White House just like Ronald Reagan did, say insiders.

Schwarzenegger wants to be governor of California — and could go all the way to the White House, say insiders

We can see the bumper stickers now: Terminator for President!

That's the buzz from show biz insiders who say Arnold Schwarzenegger has his steely eye on political office — and he could go all the way to the top!

With his no-nonsense screen image as a muscle man who talks seldom and carries a very big stick, Schwarzenegger could straight-shoot his way to the top of any election.

His political allies are many. Schwarzenegger has been a staunch Republican Party supporter for years and is an adviser to President Bush on physical fitness.

Movie director John Milius, who led Arnie through one of his early he-man adventures, Conan the Barbarian, says Schwarzenegger wants to run.

"Arnie says he's going to be the governor of California. That is part of his plan," says Milius.

"He even said I could be head of the state police." (This would make Milius top cop for the California Highway Patrol — or Chief CHiP!)

Schwarzenegger can follow in the went from Sacramento, Calif., to Washington, D.C., with hardly a break in stride.

Schwarzenegger, 45, has one more hurdle ahead if he wants the White House — right now, the law says foreign-born citizens can't be President. But there's a bill before Congress to change that, and by the 1996 presidential election, insiders say the new law could put Arnie in the White House.

That would make Maria Shriver — as JFK's niece already a member of the Kennedy clan — First Lady! — Rolling Stone

Raspy Rod Stewart says his voice may be going — and he's scared!

Rod's been selectively canceling some of his European tour dates after checking into a Brit hospital and seeing an L.A. throat doc.

Ramblin' Rod suffers from severe pollen and dust allergies, and it's robbing his voice of its power.

"These thoughts are awful. My voice is my life.

"I don't want to talk about this," he says, no doubt wanting to save his voice. — Philadelphia Inquirer

Comedy duos never seem to last. Eventually, it's always splitsville.

The latest? Cheech and Chong, the hippie drug-humor duet.

Cheech Marin was at a media tour for his new TV series, Culture Clash. Someone who asked him where Tommy Chong was got this in reply:

"He got hit by a bus. He's in a coma, man. It's an improvement." — Fort Lauderdale Sun-Sentinel

Smoky-throated Kathleen Turner, at 37 starring as the gal P.I. with the unpronounceable last name in V.I. Warshawski, says she never thought of herself as good-looking.

"I thought I was like Doris Day: Blonde hair and dimples and freckles. I had this one horrible year when I was 13 when I got heavy and my mother called me 'Moon Face.'

"Now, I just think I am a good-looking American woman, not beautiful." — Los Angeles Times

Former Happy Hooker Xaviera Hollander told all — again! — when she was in Amsterdam, Holland, for the recent 10th world Sexology Congress.

She says she has slept with 2,500 men — up to four a day — but the fear of AIDS has put her off so much sex now.

"Women have been kept down for thousands of years by men so now I prefer to keep my men penniless and financially dependent on me," boasted Hollander.

She also admitted that she has gudged up in recent years. "Okay, so I am fat and don't have the wonderful pinup figure I was famous for before." — London World

It's a good thing Patrick Stewart works in outer space — because he says he believes in space aliens. Had a resident ghost in his house for a while, in fact.

The Star Trek: The Next Generation star says, "My dog went mad — he jumped through a pane of glass to get away from it."

The 51-year-old actor with the balding pate notes, "It was a poltergeist haunting this old house I lived in. I believe in UFOs, aliens and life on other planets — I hope they're friendly." — London Sun

Comedian George Carlin, who's made a bundle over the years discussin' cussin', says curse words are fine when chosen well and placed strategically throughout conversation.

"I think swearing has a very important part of play in the seasoning of language," says George.

"If language is a soup, then swearing is its salt."

Don't worry. George doesn't up the rating for his latest film, Bill and Ted's Bogus Journey. — Toronto Star

Two oldies but goodies are set to hit the road together in December with a concert tour — in Japan.

Ex-Beatle George Harrison, who has not been on tour since '74, and Eric Clapton, who has been silent since his 4-year-old son's fatal fall last March from a Manhattan apartment building, will do 13 concerts.

If all goes well, then the duo may tour Europe and U.S. in '92. — Philadelphia Inquirer

Big-spending Princess Stephanie of Monaco has come upon hard times, it seems, and Daddy has cut off her allowance.

Outraged over her reckless self-indulgence, Prince Rainier has chopped her $5,000-a-month stipend, forcing her to slum it in a rented apartment.

Friends say splurging Steph is reduced to living off the palace grounds and driving a rented BMW, with only pocket change from Papa Prince to spend.

Things have been going downhill for Steph for some time. Her career as a rock singer is nowhereville, and unsold cases of her new perfume, Stephanie, are piling up in Paris beauty salons.

What's worse, the IRS is after her for all the time she spends in America with Hollywood types. And reportedly she owes $500,000 to ex-lover Ron Bloom for the hire of recording studios. — London Star

Hollywood is really going to the dogs!

Things must be really Ruff in Hollywood because a pack of doggie flicks are on their way.

No doubt Tinseltown sees big bucks for these pet projects: Cindy Williams and a mixed collie in Bingo!; Beethoven, about a St. Bernard who takes over a suburban family; Geena Davis and Woody Harrelson in Me and My Body, about a single woman whose dog has better judgment about men than she does; Breakfast with Spaulding, a canine version of Look Who's Talking: Ophelia, a cat (How did a cat get in here?) that turns into a woman; Dog Spell, in which a child turns into a dog; and a remake of You Never Can Tell, about a dead dog returning as a sleuth — a bloodhound, no doubt. — Palm Beach Post

MUTTS haven't been so hot in Hollywood since Benji stole hearts in the 1970s.

CUDDLY Kathleen Turner has made guys' blood race ever since Body Heat and Romancing the Stone, but she insists, "I am not beautiful."

How I Lost Weight By Over-Eating

Anyone can lose weight fast. Just don't eat anything for a couple of weeks. And you'll slim down to skin and bones in a hurry. Starvation, pure and simple, is truly the fool-proof way to lop off those extra pounds.

Of course, your body and mind will put up with this torturous nonsense for just so long and then plead for relief. The minute you go back to your regular diet, back will go those excess pounds. So starvation, obviously, is not the answer.

Neither is semi-starvation. The kind that calls for harmful appetite suppressants or unappetizing powdered "drinks." Yes, you may end up thinner (and weaker) for a while — and maybe into the hospital.

There is a realistic, common-sense, healthy method for achieving long-term, permanent weight-loss. Forget starvation. This method actually encourages you to over-eat. Yet you can start losing at least five pounds a week. Without changing your basic diet or your lifestyle or filling your stomach with non-satisfying, non-food substitutes. And still continue those mouth-watering binges on pastries, cake, butter, sauces, and all the other "goodies" you love so well.

Maybe this all sounds unbelievable. But every word is true. With this amazing method, I over-ate — still lost weight — and never put back an ounce.

Lose Weight and Keep it Lost
Even if You Eat Much Too Much!

With this method, if you are up to 20 pounds overweight, you can lose an average of five to six pounds in the first week. In the following weeks, expect to lose three to four pounds per week. You may lose weight even quicker if you are more than 20 pounds overweight. Some people with 40 pounds to shed have lost up to 12 pounds in the very first week.

This method is based upon nutritionists' documented discovery. It enables you to slim down without starving yourself in any way. Matter of fact, you are not stopped from eating or bound by dietary restrictions but actually encouraged to eat as much as you like.

The complete details of this extraordinary method, including the scientific basis for the discovery that makes it possible, are in the free "Weight-Loss Advisory" that I'll mail to you. In clear, easy-to-understand words, it explains how you can lose a minimum of five pounds a week or more until you reach your ideal weight. All without spending one cent for potentially harmful drugs or so-called food supplements.

Send for your "Weight-Loss Advisory" now. It is yours free. There is absolutely no charge, no further obligation. Since you have absolutely nothing to lose — except those excess pounds — mail the coupon below at once. (Important: This is a limited offer. Avoid disappointment by putting the coupon into the mail today.)

Pint-sized 18-year-old has made one big hit after another

Pygmy producer is a filmmaking giant!

By JOE BERGER
Staff writer

Pint-size Paulie Mogale is barefoot and barely 4 feet tall, but the baby-faced filmmaker is ready to set highbrow Hollywood ablaze — as the world's first pygmy movie producer!

The peewee whiz kid has drawn rave reviews around the world for his probing documentaries on the dying rain forests and the plight of Africa's endangered rhinos.

Now, backers say sawed-off Paulie is set to take Tinseltown by storm, turning out megahits that'll make Terminator 2 and Naked Gun 2½ look like dog meat.

"This kid is only 18 years old, and he looks even younger — but he's a moviemaking genius," gushed moneybags businessman Toshio Mutai, one of four Tokyo tycoons who've pledged to finance Paulie's first blockbuster movie.

"He's going to be bigger than Michael Douglas, bigger than Spike Lee, maybe even bigger than Cecil B. De Mille.

"And knowing Paulie, we'll never get him into a coat and tie. So he's going to make quite a splash when he hits the Hollywood party circuit in his loincloth and beads."

The amazing tale of the pygmy prodigy began three years ago when Paulie and two other Baka tribesmen from the Cameroon jungles were picked to take part in a special education program in France.

"This boy had never seen a movie camera before, but the minute we put one in his hands he began shooting the most incredible stuff we'd ever seen," said flabbergasted cinematography teacher Claude Bourdier.

"He had a way of looking at things with a child's innocence and determination that was totally different and refreshing. It was absolutely magic.

"Within the first few hours, everybody sensed that with his personality and his talent, he was going to be big, big, big."

Six months later, half-pint Paulie had completed his first documentary — a heart-tugging look at the death of an aging Baka chieftain. And critics have been raving about the impish impresario ever since.

"Now I've got five documentaries and I can't wait to move to Hollywood," puny Paulie told reporters in Yaounde, Cameroon. "I've never been to a city with so many beautiful people before, so I'm very excited. I know they have some very pretty girls there and I think some of them will like me — 'cause I'll be the only rich pygmy in town."

PEEWEE Paulie Mogale adjusts the focus on one of his expensive cameras while filming a hard-hitting documentary on the plight of Africa's endangered rhinos.

What famous folks thought about marriage

Here's what some famous people have said about marriage:

"Keep your eyes wide open before marriage, and half-shut afterward." — Benjamin Franklin

"No matter how happily a woman may be married, it always pleases her to discover that there is a nice man who wishes that she were not." — H.L. Mencken, author

"I have always thought that every woman should marry, and no man." — Benjamin Disraeli, British prime minister

"Nobody works as hard for his money as the man who marries it." — Kin Hubbard, American humorist

"No man should marry until he has studied anatomy and dissected at least one woman." — Honore de Balzac, author

"Men and women, in marrying, make a vow to love one another. Would it not be better for their happiness if other?" — Stanislaus Leszczynski, King of Poland

"The most happy marriage I can picture or imagine to myself would be the union of a deaf man to a blind woman." — Samuel T. Coleridge, poet

"Matrimony is the high sea for which no compass has yet been invented." — Heinrich Heine, poet

"There may be good, but there are no pleasant marriages." — Duke Francois de La Rochefoucauld, author

"A system could not have been devised happiness than marriage." — Percy Bysshe Shelley, poet

"Love matches are made by people who are content, for a month of honey, to condemn themselves to a life of vinegar." — Countess of Blessington, novelist

"Remember, it's as easy to marry a rich woman as a poor woman." — William Makepeace Thackeray, writer

"One should always be in love. That is the reason one should never marry." — Oscar Wilde, playwright and novel-

It takes nutty college profs to tell us animals are lazy?

. . . any darn fool knows THAT!

I'm madder than a mutt with a flea on his snoot over the latest bombshell those egghead college professors just dropped — telling us most animals are lazy bums who will do anything to get out of work!

MY AMERICA
By ED ANGER

Some scientists spent lots of time and money spying on lots of animals and decided most of them are shiftless as can be. If a critter's not hungry, he won't do a lick of work.

Now, I'm no college professor, but it doesn't take a rocket scientist to figure out that animals are lazy. If this is the kind of thing they're teaching in college nowadays, this great country of ours is in BIG trouble.

Let's face it. All I had to do was watch my dog Dodger for a day to know that animals are lazy. That dog is so lazy that I have to take his food dish to him because he won't get out of his bed long enough to have dinner. And he's only 3 years old, for crying out loud.

All my dog likes to do is watch TV and sleep. He won't even chase cats out of our yard. He yawns more than he barks! In fact, he hates work so much he wouldn't even fetch a ball when he was a pup. And he won't go to sleep without a big fluffy pillow, either. He'll just lie there and whine until you get him one.

The way animals think, getting sent to a zoo is like going to heaven. Then they can lie around in their cages and wait for their three squares a day.

Bears are so lazy they sleep all winter. And cats are the laziest animals of all. In fact, it's a miracle their eyelids don't grow together because they're shut all the time.

Birds are bums, too. They just sail around the sky, flapping their wings only when they have to avoid a crash.

Fish are lazy as hell, too. That's the reason they hate to end up in a fish bowl — they have to move around now and then so they don't get flushed down the toilet. In the wild they can just lie on the bottom of the lake like bums and never do anything.

Yours truly could've saved those university eggheads a lot of time and money if they wanted to know if animals are lazy. I guess they were just too lazy to ask.

Have you heard the latest Kennedy joke making the rounds?

Q. How many Kennedys does it take to change a light bulb?

A. Three. One to hold the bulb and two to drink until the room starts spinning.

ED'S old dog Dodger, left, usually lies around watching TV. He's so lazy he yawns more than he barks. Napping cat at right is Maxie, the lazy office feline.

THESE LAZY mutts ought to be up chasing a ball or a Frisbee or even a car, but they're not. They're just lying around.

Nap can cure midday blahs

A twenty-minute nap or meditation break is the best way to avoid a mid-afternoon slump.

That's the word from Neil B. Kavey, director of the Sleep Disorders Center at Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center in New York City.

Dr. Kavey adds that heavy lunches and sweet snacks contribute to drowsy afternoon spells.

Patient doesn't pay a dime if docs don't stitch in time

If the emergency room staff at Detroit's Doctors Hospital doesn't see you within 20 minutes, there's no charge.

Doctors have pledged to stitch, bandage, X-ray or splint for free if a patient has to wait too long for treatment.

So far, no one has waited the full 20 minutes.

The hospital says the idea was inspired by a pizza chain which offers a free pizza if delivery takes longer than 30 minutes.

SECRET PROPHECY OF FATIMA REVEALED!

BRAND NEW EDITION

Do the miracles of the Blessed Virgin tie in with the predictions of Nostradamus & Jeane Dixon?

THE VISIONS

Six visions are associated with the Miracle at Fatima. The first vision was on May 13, 1917 and involved three little children—Francisco, Jacinta and Lucy, who reported seeing lightning on a cloudless day and a globe of light which settled amidst the branches of an old oak tree. Little by little a light appeared to develop in the center of the globe and the figure of a beautiful young woman appeared surrounded in iridescent radiance. The woman spoke to the children. She said, "Do not be afraid. I will not harm you." The lady told them to return to the same spot on the same day of each month and that eventually she would perform miracles and make her presence known to the faithful.

The children suffered numerous persecutions. Their own parents called them liars. The church said the apparition was Satan's handy work, while the government actually threw them in jail and threatened to boil them alive in a vat of oil, if they didn't confess to making up the entire episode. The trio kept to their original story and the crowds grew in hopes of being blessed by Jesus' mother. They came on crutches or were carried in the arms of loved ones. Many miracles were subsequently performed and the spot has since become a shrine.

THE THREE PROPHECIES

During the course of her appearance, the "woman in white," gave the children three prophecies. One prediction involved the end of the first world war, the second concerned itself with World War II, and the rise of Russia as a global threat. A third prophecy was given but it was decided that it was too traumatic to be revealed and instead of being released, the prophecy was placed in a sealed envelope and handed over to the Bishop of Portugal for safekeeping until it was to be opened in 1960 in the presence of the Pope. 1960 came and went without any disclosure from the Vatican, but those who were present at the opening of the envelope say the Pope's face turned white and he left quickly after reading the contents of the third prophecy of Fatima. To this day the church has never disclosed the final message of the Blessed Mother. Many feel the prophecy deals with Armageddon, but the truth may even be more shocking. What is not generally known is that Lucy (who later became a nun) has continued up to this day to have prophetic visions the contents of which are also utterly startling.

PHENOMENA OF THE FALLING SUN

As 70,000 stood in stunned silence on October 13, 1917 at Fatima, the sun seemed to leave its orbit and come crashing toward earth. It had been raining heavily before the Virgin's promised appearance at noon but suddenly, the rain stopped and many witnesses reported that the sun started to spin in much the same way that a firecracker Pin wheel spins. It gave off fiery fingers of light that extended across the sky. The earth itself changed colors. First it was cast in a sort of red shadow, then orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo and violet. As the sun plunged toward the ground it shimmered violently. The crowd screamed. Some thought it was the end of the world. Thousands fell to their knees in terror. Others went prone, pleading with God to have mercy. The weird display continued for 10 minutes. Finally, the sun halted its devastating approach and started to climb again to its normal position in the sky. The ground dried up immediately. This is generally thought to be the greatest miracle of modern times witnessed by thousands of believers and former skeptics alike. This miracle defies science and it has never been explained—IT NEVER WILL BE!

AN EERIE COINCIDENCE

The coincidence was startling. Just after 5 P.M. on May 13, 1981, Pope John Paul II was shot while riding in a white jeep through St. Peter's Square. It was just after 5 p.m. on May 13,1917, that the three children while tending sheep saw the Virgin Mary for the first time.

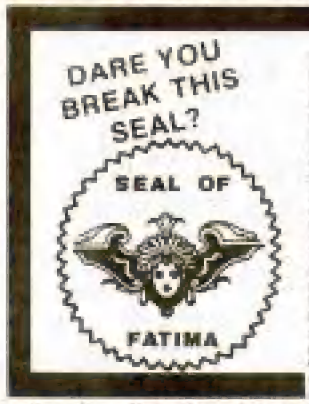
The Pope was still in the hospital recovering from the Turkish radical's bullet when he decided to go to the Basilica of our Lady of Fatima to give thanks to the Blessed Mother for saving his life.

Pope John Paul II is convinced that his remarkable recovery from his bullet wounds was the result of the intervention of the Virgin. In December 1981 he told an audience, "I have seen the extraordinary maternal protection that showed itself to be more powerful than the homicidal bullets."

The Pope's devotion to Mary is unabashed and certainly no secret. His feelings for Mary have been fervent even when he was Bishop of Krakow, Poland. At that time he had an "M" for Mary emblazoned on his robes. Now that he is the Pope, his blue-and -white shield bears the same letter and his personal motto is "Totus Tuus sum Maria," which is Latin for "Mary, I am all yours."

PHOTOGRAPHIC PROOF

The Middle Ages is generally considered the golden age of the cult of Mary. However, there are many theologians, historians and sociologists who don't agree. One of them is a minister from Washington, N.J. who says, "We have wars, threats of war, cults, drugs, and a thousand other problems. People are looking frantically for help, and in Mary, they find it." The minister is convinced that the 20th Century is the age of Mary. Another who feels the same way is a specialist in the history of Christianity at a university in Pennsylvania. "This is the most active age of devotion to the Virgin...The interest has been building for the past 150 years with more and more reports of Mary in more and more places." This book discusses many of these apparitions in detail and actually published AUTHENTIC photos of the Virgin Mary as snapped by the eye of the camera in several locations over the last few years.



THE SECRET PROPHECY OF FATIMA REVEALED comes with a golden notary seal on the book's final section (there are 3 sections total, one in honor of each prophecy), the contents of which we predict could prove totally devastating and awesome to the reader regardless of religious conviction. If, after reading this exciting volume up to this point, you do not feel you can take the astounding revelations of these final climactic pages, we will gladly refund your purchase price as long as the seal has not been broken. The mystery of the controversial revealed prophecy has been speculated about for years. The mystery finally has been broken. The revelations and predictions in this book are guaranteed to astound you. They are chilling and indicate that we are in the middle of a very important period for all of mankind.

Widow asks question about dead hubby & is maimed for life!

Ouija board comes to life — & cuts woman's fingers off!

By MARY BRANCH
Special to The NEWS

A Ouija board went wild and sliced four fingers off Margie Summers' hand just because she asked it a question about her dead husband Sam!

Now the tragic woman from Boston fears for her life, believing she's unleashed supernatural forces that won't be satisfied until they've murdered her in cold blood.

"I knew I shouldn't have messed around with that Ouija board — I knew it," Mrs. Summers, who's still wearing a bandage on her mangled left hand, told a leading psychic journal.

"It sliced off my fingers and it's not through with me yet," she added. "I don't know why and I don't know how — but it's not going to stop until I'm dead."

The 53-year-old woman said the drama began when she sat down at the Ouija board with a good friend and began to ask questions about Sam Summers, who dropped dead of a heart attack in 1987.

The game behaved normally at first, she added, but began to "shake violently" when asked if her spouse had found happiness in heaven.

"My friend and I had never used a Ouija board before so we thought all that shaking was par for the course," said Mrs. Summers.

"The next thing I know that little plastic thing that moves around the board, the planchette, flew right over my hand, slicing through my fingers like a knife.

"I screamed and fell back and my friend started crying and went into shock. Somehow I gathered my wits and drove both of us to the hospital.

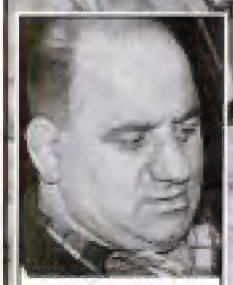
"But my fingers were severed at the knuckle and in such bad shape that the doctors couldn't sew them back on."

Several psychic investigators have interviewed Mrs. Summers and believe that she is telling the truth about the Ouija board attack.

One of the experts says there are at least nine similar cases on record and blames them all on "evil entities who exist in the spirit world and use the Ouija as a threshold to wreak havoc in ours."

Said Mrs. Summers: "I burned the Ouija board and the planchette but I know that my life is hanging by a thread.

"If people are smart they won't go near a Ouija board," she added. "I thought it was just a parlor game until this happened. Now I know how dangerous they really are."



DEAD hubby Sam Summers.

SUPERNATURAL FORCES unleashed! Margie Summers holds up her bandaged hand after it was slashed by her out-of-control Ouija board during a session with the bizarre game.

How to save your job during the recession

It may take more than good work to keep your job in these troubled times. But you can hang in there while others are being laid off by following these tips from business expert Robert Half:

● Make yourself invaluable. Do more than you're expected to do, volunteer for projects, take work home, finish assignments before they're due.

● Compliment your boss. Everyone likes to be complimented, so if your boss does a good job, say so. But don't be too condescending or you'll come across as an apple-polisher.

● Be thoughtful. Let your boss know that you're thinking about your job even during off hours.

Example: If you're on vacation or home sick, call in to see if there are problems that need to be addressed.

● Protect your boss. Don't feed the rumor mill with adverse opinions about your boss.

● Get along with your boss' boss — and with your boss' assistant. If your pany, either person could become your direct supervisor.

● Do not overtly support someone who has been fired. Someone who has been fired may not have been trusted by your superiors. Overt support from you may raise questions among your supervisors about your own trustworthiness.

● Be frugal with the company's resources. Show your concern for the bottom line.

Examples: Make money-saving suggestions . . . limit the supplies that you

Granny won't get one red cent from her $billion invention

. . . because patent ran out BEFORE new skates got hot!

PROUD Emma DeSarro displays drawing of in-line roller skates she first patented back in the late 1950s.

THEY'LL NEVER work, said the big roller skate manufacturers — until the patient inventor's patent ran out. Now EVERYONE'S getting into the act!

By DICK DONOVAN
Staff writer

The in-line roller skate craze is sweeping America to the tune of $250 million a year — but the 78-year-old granny who first came up with the idea won't get a red cent!

Brainy Emma DeSarro of West Palm Beach, Fla., conceived the idea for a single line of wheels back in the late 1950s. But her patent ran out in 1985, just a few short years before it would have made her rich beyond her wildest dreams.

And she will proudly show that patent to doubters: U.S. Patent No. 3,387,852. Detachable and Removable Roller Skates (with) a single longitudinal line of wheels mounted on special frames.

Emma, whose husband died in 1962, said she got the idea for in-line roller skates while watching ice skating competition on a TV sports show.

"I sent the idea to Chicago Roller Skate Co., and they told me, 'Sorry, Mrs. DeSarro, but your program I thought, 'Roller skates are so heavy and clumsy,'" she explained. "Why doesn't someone invent skates with wheels in a line like ice skates that can be used on floors or outside?"

Emma, an artist with only a seventh-grade education, decided to do it herself. She designed the wheels, the special frame that held them in a single line, drew up all the special fittings and created a "Wonder Woman"-like boot that had style and grace.

"I called them Space Skates," she said with a laugh. "I guess I was ahead of my time.

"Other companies said they had their own design departments.

"Well, if they had their own designers, why didn't they think of the idea? Now, the ing." Though she lost what to her was a lot of money to marketing hustlers, and will never see a penny of the fortune that could have been hers, she isn't bitter.

"There's nothing I can do about it anyway," she told The NEWS. "I'm 78 years old now. And back when I got my patent, I had three children to and I was advised by a friend to wait until just before it expired, then make a design change and apply for a new patent.

"But I lost interest . . . I forgot. I'm not a fanatic.

"I may not have made a million dollars, but at least I have the satisfaction of knowing I was the first one."

Run your family like a business & you'll ALL be happier

By SALLY CURRAN
Special to The NEWS

You can improve your family life by running it like an efficient business, experts say.

"Good management is vital for families," just as it is for businesses, declared Dr. Samuel Wilson. And to manage your family better, the experts advise:

✓ Buy only what you can afford. Too much debt can drive a business under — and can be disastrous for a family as well. Figure out your expenses and don't let them exceed your income. Stick to a budget.

✓ Plan ahead. Just as in a business, you need to think of the future so you can seize opportunities and head off problems. If you want to send a child to an expensive college, you might decide to scrimp on vacation spending so you won't be caught short when tuition bills start rolling in.

✓ Good productivity is as vital for families as for businesses. That means everyone should pull their load and do a fair share of work around the house. Assign appropriate jobs to each member of the family. For example, a 3-year-old isn't going to be able to perform the same tasks as a 9-year-old.

✓ Don't neglect your investment. A business that's neglected will fail — and so will a family. Do preventive maintenance on your family relationships and never take family members for granted.

✓ Work at getting respect within your family, just as businessmen work to gain the respect of their employees. Poor money management and unfair demands can cost you the respect of your family.

Mom's a pain in the butt 'cause she won't get off my back!

Confidential

Dear Puzzled in Walsenburg: If your uncle insists on telling you about the birds and the bees, he's not only sick, he's gay!

Dear Dirt Poor in Prospect: I agree with your boss — minimum wage is MORE than enough for a bum like you!

Dear Outcast in Shady Grove: The way I see it you can do one of two things — buy a better mouthwash or get used to living alone!

Dear Terrified Addict in Blyton: If I were you I'd bend way over — and kiss my butt goodbye!

Dear Wondering in Tucson: As far as I'm concerned there are three keys to success: Intelligence, perseverance and luck!

Dotti will answer your letters — and tell it like it is. Just write to her, c/o Weekly World News, 600 South East Coast Ave., Lantana, Fla. 33462.

Dear Dotti: I'm a 15-year-old girl and my problem is my mother. She yells at me all the time about everything, no matter what! She makes me wash my own clothes, wash dishes, feed the dog and tells me I'm spoiled when I ask her to drive me to the mall.

She also says I don't respect her but how can I when she doesn't respect me? Now I've been grounded for a week because I slapped my 11-year-old sister. What do you think about this mess? — Gail in Pennsylvania

Dear Gail: I agree that your mother is unreasonable — she should have grounded you for a month!

My mother-in-law treats her grandson like dirt

Dear Dotti: My sister-in-law and I both had babies last year and the problem is her mother. Whenever I call and ask if she wants to see my son she makes up some excuse to get out of it and then turns right around and goes to see my sister-in-law's daughter. To make matters worse, she remembered her granddaughter's birthday but forgot about my son's.

Is it my imagination or does my mother-in-law like her granddaughter and not her grandson? If so, what should I do? — Wondering Mom in Cumberland

Dear Wondering: Your mother-in-law is clearly playing favorites and your husband — her son — ought to get off his lazy butt and do something about it!

We hunks are tired of being used by women

Dear Dotti: My buddy and I are sick of being used by women just because we're physically attractive. We want meaningful relationships — but we can't seem to find any gals who think like we do. Any advice? — Drained Dudes in Denver

Dear Drained Dudes: There are plenty of decent women in the world and it's up to you to find them. Churches are a good place to look and so are continuing education classes and university campuses.

Avoid gals over 30 — they'd already be hitched if they had anything on the ball!

When are you gonna strip to your skivvies, Dotti?

Dear Dotti: A few weeks ago a reader dared you to publish a picture of yourself in a bikini and you told him you would. So where's the picture, Dotti? Did you chicken out? — Curious in Washington

Dear Curious: Millions of Americans are itching to see Dotti Primrose take it off. Next week you'll get your wish. And as I advised earlier, heart patients, watch out!

Should bars be allowed to have ladies' nights?

Dear Dotti: I was watching one of those idiotic TV talk shows the other day when this fool came on and said ladies' nights in bars are sexist and ought to be banned. I happen to enjoy ladies' nights and think they're great. What do you think, Dotti? — S.L. in Las Cruces

Dear S.L.: Ladies' night, shmadies' night. If a gal can't turn on the charm and get a man to spring for her cocktails, she's too young — or dumb — to drink!

What does my husband's 666 birthmark mean?

COUNTESS SOPHIA SABAK offers readers personal advice based on your horoscope. Write to Countess Sabak, Weekly World News, 600 S. East Coast Ave., Lantana, Fla., 33462. Include your birth date. The Countess' advice is free. Do not send money.

Dear Countess: My new husband and I dated for 18 months before we got married but it wasn't until after our wedding that I noticed an unusual birthmark — the number 666 — behind his left ear. This is really a birthmark, Countess, it's not a tattoo. What could it possibly mean? Am I in danger? — Concerned in D.C.

Editor's Note: Countess Sabak didn't have time to answer this letter before she jetted to Washington to meet personally with Concerned but she's confident that she'll do everything in her power to help.

Dear Countess: You may not believe this, but I've had nine serious accidents that would have killed an ordinary person but I've obviously come through all of them alive. Over the past seven years I've survived two airplane crashes, four serious car wrecks, a fall from a fifth-floor balcony and two gunshot wounds to the head. I really feel like I've been blessed in some way but I don't know why.

Can you give me some insight? — Curious in Roanoke

Dear Curious: My crystal ball detects no great purpose in your life so that leaves only one explanation for your survival — luck!

Enjoy it while you have it, my friend. Fortunes are forever changing — and not always for the better!

HOMELESS COUPLE GETS MARRIED IN DUMPSTER!

AFTER the ceremony, newlyweds Jack and Sally celebrated with beer.

By KATHERINE ANN ROSS
Correspondent

SAVANNAH, Ga. — Homeless lovebirds Sally Sloane and Jack Smart got hitched where they first met — amid the flies and stench of a garbage dumpster!

The down-and-out couple was married by a preacher, with a handful of street friends as startled witnesses.

At the end of the ceremony, the devoted duo kissed and toasted each other with a couple of cans of beer.

"I've married lots of folks," confesses the Rev. Larry McNaire, "but never in a pile of garbage. I don't think I'm ever going to get the smell out of my clothes."

Jack and Sally were homeless when they met. And as a married couple, they are homeless still. "But at least we got each other," jovial Jack says.

It was a chilly night in January when the couple met. Jack, 58, says he was already bedded down for the night in his favorite trash bin, less than a block from the river.

"I heard a sound and I thought it was some bum trying to steal my stuff," Jack says. "I got my club ready, but then I saw it wasn't a bum. It was a babe!"

Sally, 51, says she was freezing that night and decided to take her chances sleeping in a trash bin rather than her usual spot — the doorway of a nearby apartment building.

"I had trouble getting up in the bin," Sally recalls. "I saw this man was already there and I nearly fainted! But then I saw his eyes. I knew I was safe."

Jack adds, "Sally likes to say our luck changed that night in a pile of garbage."

The pair of down-and-outers spent that first night shivering at opposite ends of the metal trash bin, surrounded by split and dripping garbage bags. The next morning, they shared breakfast at a nearby soup kitchen and got to know each other a little better.

"We found that we have so much in common," Sally says excitedly. "We both come from the Midwest. We both used to work in diners."

Over the next seven months the couple realized they were spending all of their time together and decided to tie the knot.

They intend "to head south and look for work in a Florida restaurant."

Finding the love connection in a trash bin is rare for the homeless, but bonding together against adversity and hard times isn't, according to the man who married them.

"Everybody needs somebody," says Rev. McNaire. "And the homeless are no exception. They're no different from folks with homes and jobs. They need somebody to help keep them going day to day."

Love-struck pair ties the knot amid the coffee grounds and fish bones

Texas teen's SHOCKING revelation

I'M JACK THE RIPPER REINCARNATED

THE RIPPER LIVES IN TEXAS! High-schooler Barry Darion, shown above wearing a hood similar to the one he wore as London killer Jack the Ripper.

By JOE BERGER
Staff writer

Schoolboy says killer's reign of terror ended when he died of AIDS in 1888!

Unsuspecting schoolboy Barry Darion underwent hypnosis on a whim and learned to his horror that he'd lived before — as bloodthirsty butcher Jack the Ripper!

And the Texas teenager added a chilling twist to his tale of terror, recalling the Ripper's hideous death more than 100 years ago — from the dread disease now known as AIDS.

"This boy has provided us with the most dramatic and convincing evidence of reincarnation the world has ever seen," said excited psychiatry professor Siegbert Dugler.

"I've examined and tested Barry for nearly a year now and I can say with scientific certainty that he is the re-embodiment of Jack the Ripper.

"I'm sure that the Ripper died of AIDS, most likely contracted from one of his victims."

The heart-stopping story began when Barry, 17, visited a Houston hypnotist hoping to improve his study habits — and was jolted by images that made his blood run cold.

"I could feel myself going back through the years, almost like the pages of a calendar were turning backwards," the stunned youngster later told a reporter.

"I could see a man in a hood walking, walking. And then he came up behind a woman in a black dress and slit her throat with a knife, just like it was nothing, you know.

"I saw him do that over and

PROFESSOR Dugler

JACK the Ripper

fourth one he killed, I realized the man in the hood was me. I could actually feel the knife cut into her flesh and feel her blood ooze over my hand.

"I was so horrified I just sat and screamed. I'd hardly even read anything about Jack the Ripper before — and suddenly I Flabbergasted Barry and his Houston hypnotist were so shocked by the bizarre turn of events that six months ago they summoned Dr. Dugler, a renowned Swiss psychiatrist considered the world's leading authority on reincarnation.

Since then, the dedicated doc has subjected Barry to countless hours of hypnotic regression, forcing him to relive the goriest moments of his life as the Ripper — the sicko who slaughtered 17 London prostitutes in 1888.

"The boy has recounted the killings in the minutest of detail, and in every case his version matches perfectly with files," said a dumbfounded Dugler. "He even told of two murders never attributed to the Ripper because he used a claw hammer, not a knife.

"When you put it all together, there can be no doubt that this kid actually was Jack the Ripper in a previous life."

While hypnotized, rattled Barry re-experienced his life as a mousy accountant who butchered hookers to save them from sin. And he remembered dying — a broken shell of a man — in a London rooming house just months after the killing ceased.

"He said he just got too sick to murder anymore," Dugler said. "Back then the doctors had no idea what was wrong with the man. But today they would know in a minute. Jack the Ripper was dying of AIDS."

RETIRE IN MEXICO ON $16 A DAY

(Special) Publisher Ross Paron announced release of the new edition of Paradise Found: How to Live in North America's Best Climate for Under $500 a Month. The book reveals how over 25,000 Americans live the good life on a beautiful, 60-mile long lake nestled safely in the mountains of Mexico. Please read this exclusive interview.

Question: Where is this paradise located?

Answer: It's simple to get there. You can drive there in a few days from anywhere in the U.S. By air, it's just a few hours away.

Question: Why do so many Americans live there?

Answer: The climate is near perfect year round. It's often called the world's best climate. Prices are ridiculously low. It's one of the cheapest places to live in the entire world. Many people live comfortably on social security and small pensions.

Question: Besides the near perfect climate and low cost of living, what else draws Americans there?

Answer: The sheer beauty of the place. You're on a magnificent lake 60 miles long, nestled in the mountains. You'll breathe fresh, clean, unpolluted air. You'll see stunning colors. Blue water, green mountains, red and yellow flowers.

I have traveled throughout Europe, the Caribbean and Hawaii and never have I seen such an enchanting place. That's why I call the book Paradise Found, it's the closest thing to Paradise you'll ever find.

Question: How do the local people treat Americans there?

Answer: You'll be treated with warmth and kindness. They love Americans. We provide most of the jobs for the town-people. You can have a maid, gardener or cook for about 52¢ an hour. And you'll be paying more than the going wages.

Question: Do Americans get homesick?

Answer: Not at all. You have an American library there, medical care, American-style shopping facilities, and many social activities. Best of all, you'll be living in one of the world's best climates for a fraction of your present living costs.

Question: What else does the book cover about this Paradise?

Answer: The book explains everything you need to know. How to get there, where to stay, where to eat, what to do. You'll discover how to buy a home at ridiculous prices. How to earn extra money.

Whether you're looking for a place to retire, a low-cost vacation spot or somewhere to get away from it all, this place has something for you.

Question: Sounds like you've really hit on something here. How can readers get a copy of Paradise Found?

Answer: You can order direct from the publisher and save. Send only $12.95 plus $3 postage and handling to: United Research Publishers, 249 So. Highway 101, Dept. WPF-9, Solana Beach, CA 92075. You can return the book within 30

SUPERMOM IS ONLY 8 YEARS OLD!

Tough-as-nails orphan raising 5 brothers & sisters — by herself!

By MICHAEL TODD
Correspondent

Cute little Carmen Lopez is only 8 years old, but she's already a full-time mom with a family of five!

The dark-eyed girl was orphaned last year along with her three brothers and two sisters. But rather than see her family go to a government institution, the brave girl has become a hard-working supermom.

"She tends the kids, cooks the meals, cleans the house and provides the discipline," says the girl's proud grandmother, Anamaria Lopez. "I can't help her because I'm handicapped, so she does it all alone. She takes care of the family finances just fine, drawing up a budget every week just like her mother used to do. Everybody in town knows her and they help her out if she runs into something she can't handle."

The Trinidad, Bolivia, child-mom was a normal second grader just last year, going off to school every morning like other kids. Her father Antonio and mother Andrea ran a small grocery store and cared for Pedro, 5, Lucia, 4, Olivia, 3, Tomas, 2, and Arturo, 7 months.

Then, on October 13, Antonio and Andrea were killed in a tragic car wreck, leaving their six children orphaned.

The only living adult relative was wheelchair-ridden Anamaria Lopez, 71, who could support the children, but not care for them. Authorities decided to place the kids in a local orphanage — but brave little Carmen refused to go.

"She told me she would keep the family together herself," said Anamaria, who lives in a small bedroom in the Lopez family home.

"She begged me not to sign them over to the orphanage. I told her I'd give her a chance to run the family — and she's been terrific!"

The mini-mom doesn't go to school anymore, although several of her little siblings do. And she doesn't play outside with the neighborhood kids, preferring to get her housework done instead.

But Carmen says she likes her new role and takes pride in how well she's doing.

"I make all my brothers and sisters do what I say now because I'm the mom," the little girl said. "And I get to stay up late while the others go to bed, just like my parents used to do.

"By the time I'm grown up and married, I'll be real good at being a mom."

COURAGEOUS Carmen Lopez had to quit second grade to become a full-time "mom" for her family.

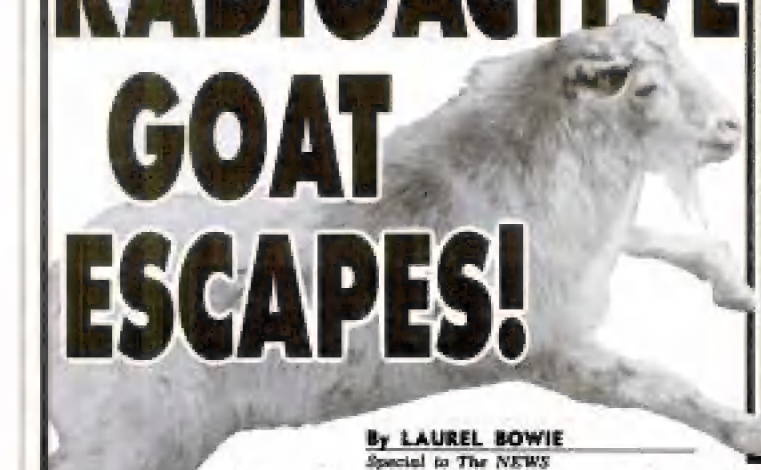
RADIOACTIVE GOAT ESCAPES!



By LAUREL BOWIE
Special to The NEWS

A crazed, radioactive goat is running amok across southern New Mexico, endangering prize herds of rare bighorn sheep — and threatening millions of Americans with the ravaging effects of radiation!

"If a goat this hot gets too close to those sheep, the damage could be devastating," said frantic physicist Peter Durantz. "But the important threat is to the lives of our citizens. If that animal contaminates the water supply for major cities, we could have a horror story on our hands."

Dr. Durantz

62 hapless animals intentionally made radioactive by U.S. government scientists conducting an incredible experiment in the New Mexico mountains last spring.

Heartless researchers planned to let hungry coyotes kill and eat the atomic goats as part of a scheme to determine coyotes' hunting patterns.

But the peabrained plot went awry when 10 of the pathetic animals broke out of their pens and ran for the hills.

"That's when the government panicked and ordered us to call the whole thing off," said one steamed-up scientist.

"They said slaughter all the goats and forget it."

Nine of the runaway animals were rounded up and killed — their contaminated carcasses all buried alongside the bodies of their radioactive pals.

But one supercharged billy is still roaming the countryside, eluding a desperate ground and air search by trackers hoping to bring him in before he spreads death and destruction across the state.

"Let's hope the authorities can catch him quickly," Dr. Durantz said.

"It's almost impossible to imagine the anguish one radioactive goat can cause."

GIANT HOROSCOPE

FOR WEEK OF Mon., Sept. 9 — Sun., Sept. 15

By Countess Sophia Sabak

ARIES
Mar. 21-Apr. 19

Break out and strut your stuff!

This should be a dramatic week and you'll be right in the center of it. A stranger could start something exciting that will last for months.

If you gamble, stick to the favorites. You should be happy with the results, so don't overdo and get greedy.

Keep an eye out for romantic hints that changes are in the air. The sooner you know what's up, the more time you'll have to buy a love offering.

TAURUS
Apr. 20-May 20

Live life to the hilt this week!

If you've been planning to do something wild and crazy, but kept putting it off, do it now! There's no time like the present to have fun.

You ought to be able to make real progress this week in your relationship to a special someone. Listen to their good advice and see their point of view. They can help you.

An unexpected meeting, perhaps through a beloved pet, could lead to a way to earn extra cash.

GEMINI
May 21-June 20

Slow down and relax!

Take a break from the day-to-day hustle and bustle and let your creative juices flow.

When those ideas start popping into your head, watch for a real winner that could put you on Easy Street.

A friend you haven't heard from in ages would love to hear from you.

Now should be a good time to get in touch. They've got something to tell you that you want to hear.

CANCER
June 21-July 22

Stick to your guns!

Somebody may be trying to slow down your search for happiness and success by putting obstacles in your path. Don't pay any attention to them. You're on the right track!

A gift of money from an unexpected source should be coming your way through the mail. Watch for the postman!

Your lucky star should be shining some romantic light down on you by the weekend.

LEO
July 23-Aug. 22

Get a little help from your friends!

Resist the urge to go it alone. Friends can help turn what looks like a setback into a triumph for all of you.

Challenges should abound. You've got the energy, so prepare to meet them head-on and succeed!

Look for good news about money matters to come your way by the end of the week. If you're feeling flush, you could get lucky with a game of chance one midweek evening.

VIRGO
Aug. 23-Sept. 22

Keep your fingers crossed!

Money worries could ease this week with the arrival of an unexpected windfall. Look for lost treasures or money in odd places — and keep what you find!

This is not the time to let yourself be swayed by the opinion of others, especially when it comes to matters of the heart. You know what to do!

It looks like you're doing your best, and that's always noticed by those who count. Keep it up.

LIBRA
Sept. 23-Oct. 22

Do whatever turns you on!

Don't shed any gray hairs over your actions this week. Have fun and don't worry about the future — it'll take care of itself.

A few surprises may be in store for you. One of your projects should be taken up by someone who ought to make your dreams come true.

By midweek an introduction to a good-looking newcomer could convince you that romance is about to bloom.

SCORPIO
Oct. 23-Nov. 21

Get all the facts!

Someone you trust may try to take some romantic advantage of you. Consider the facts carefully and then make your move. It may not be the con job you first think it is.

Your luck with money matters should improve in the very near future. Be prepared to take some chances to cash in on your good fortune.

Speak to any oldsters you see on Tuesday for an important message.

SAGITTARIUS
Nov. 22-Dec. 21

Your lucky star's shining this week!

A surprise should be in store for you this week. Your efforts ought to be recognized by people who can help make a special dream come true — soon.

There may even be the possibility of an offer that would improve your financial standing — enough so that you can take care of everyone you'd like to.

Romantic goals are near!

CAPRICORN
Dec. 22-Jan. 19

Follow your heart!

You're not always understood by everyone, so when you find someone who thinks you're wonderful and witty, make a grab for them, no matter what the family says.

Break away from old cornball resolutions. You need a new challenge in your life and this week ought to present it to you. You'll love it!

Keep an eye on behind the scenes activity this week so that you won't miss an easy money opportunity.

If your birthday is this week . . .

Mon., Sept. 9 — Sun., Sept. 15

Things will seem too good to be true this year!

Your year should get off to a good start — and things should just get better and better.

Money matter tangles should come untied very soon. This should be the year to make major purchases and to take some small financial risks.

A relationship could come true if you're willing to really put your heart

AQUARIUS
Jan. 20-Feb. 18

Think before you speak!

Don't give away any financial secrets this week. Someone is looking for a person who can keep a secret about money matters — you could be that person!

Your zipped lips could help you earn some extra cash.

Finding a new love or rekindling an old romantic relationship could be worth a try this week, if you've

PISCES
Feb. 19-Mar. 20

Luck is with you!

A super opportunity could land in your lap if you put yourself to work on entering all the sweepstakes you can find.

You should also start working on all aspects of your life — including finances and relationships with others — to make it the best life you can have right now.

Your creativity should be at a fe-

WEIRD and WACKY facts about money!

Don't try to carry around a million bucks in dollar bills — it would weigh a ton and fill two refrigerators!

That's just one of the many fascinating facts about money. Here are more:

$$ A dollar bill can be used as a ruler in a pinch. It's only a fraction over six inches long.

$$ If your boss paid you a penny for your first day of work and doubled it on each succeeding day, in 30 days, you'd have a roll of pennies that would stretch more than 400 miles — and be worth $10.7 million.

$$ If offered your weight in dollar bills, you'd get $488 a pound. That means a 160-pound person would be worth $77,788.

$$ You can use a penny to determine if you need new tires:

Place the penny's edge in the tread with the top of Lincoln's head pointing away from the tire and his face toward you. If the tread comes to the top of Abe's head, you don't need new tires.

$$ Without looking, can you tell which way the Presidents on the U.S. coins are facing? (Only Lincoln points right. All others point to the left.)

Jilted boyfriend wrecks 50 cars

A jilted boyfriend stole a construction bulldozer and went on a rampage, smashing up 50 cars and ramming the house where his girlfriend was hiding.

"He knocked down almost everything in sight," said police spokesman Hans Kamphuis of Heemskerk, Holland. "It's a $570,000 mess."

The unidentified raging romeo tore up streets, toppled stoplights and crumbled cars which burst into flames before ramming the house three times, flattening the front porch.

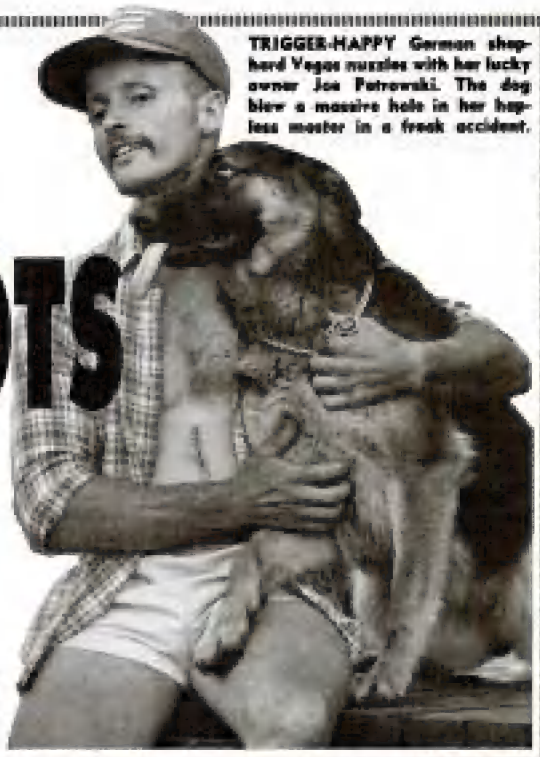
DOG SHOOTS MAN



TRIGGER-HAPPY German shepherd Vegas nuzzles with her lucky owner Joe Petrowski. The dog blew a massive hole in her hapless master in a freak accident.

. . . then saves his life!

By DICK DONOVAN
Staff writer

Canadian Joe Petrowski has a bad story and a good story to tell his future grandchildren. The bad story is how he was shot by his own dog. The good story is how his life was saved — by the same pooch!

And Joe, who lives in St. Laurent, Manitoba, admits it was his own series of mistakes that led to the near fatal shooting.

Joe was home alone and had been playing ball with his year-old German shepherd dog Vegas when he decided to repair the scope on his .22-caliber rifle.

"I removed the stock, which contained the trigger guard," the 32-year-old father of two explained.

"Then I wedged the barrel into my workbench and adjusted the scope.

"I fired a couple of test shots at a target in the yard. Before I went to check the target, I placed another bullet into the gun. That was mistake number one.

"I called Vegas and told her to sit and stay at the bench. I don't know why, but then I took the ball from her mouth and put it on the bench. That was mistake number two."

Joe said he then walked out to the target. And that's when he made the near-fatal mistake number three.

"I was at the target and I heard a click. It wasn't a bang, just a horrible click. Then I felt my rib cage lurch forward."

Playful Vegas, in her eagerness to retrieve her ball, had nudged the loaded rifle's exposed trigger and fired the lead slug straight at her master.

The bullet slammed into Joe's back, narrowly missing his spine.

It broke two ribs, sliced through his stomach and liver, then broke two more ribs in front before it exited and lodged in the waistband of his shorts.

Joe would have died there in the yard if faithful Vegas hadn't run to his side and revived him by licking his face and pawing at his neck and back.

"I still have claw scratches on my neck," Joe said. "But she revived me. I grabbed her collar and she dragged me to the house."

Joe managed to drag himself through the door and into the house where he dialed the 911 emergency number. Help arrived in time to save his life.

Joe had lost more than three pints of blood and cops said if help had been delayed 10 minutes, he probably would have died.

"I don't blame Vegas for what happened. The dog saved my life.

"I know I could have gotten into the house by myself," Joe said. "But I don't know if I could have awoke without Vegas pestering me. And that's a mighty big if."

WRITE AND SPEAK IN PERFECT ENGLISH

Amazing Book Corrects English Errors in Minutes

Many persons use the expression "You should lay down" or "You haven't drunk coffee today." Still others use the expression "between you and I" instead of "between you and me." Few know whether to spell certain words with one or two "l's" or "r's." Others fail to use commas and other punctuation marks to make their meaning clear.

Mistakes in English can cause you embarrassment and hold you back socially and on the job. They can make you look awkward and hide your true intellect.

A new book, Errors in English and Ways to Correct Them, can protect you from possible mistakes in English. This book emphasizes the most common mistakes in grammar, spelling, punctuation and pronunciation that frequently cause trouble and embarrassment.

Perfect Grammar — About 25 errors in grammar make up virtually all everyday mistakes in English. This book emphasizes the most common errors in grammar and gives you simple rules to help make sure you never make these mistakes. Proper grammar is essential to expressing your ideas clearly and effectively in writing and speaking.

Perfect Spelling — About 174 words are commonly misspelled. This book emphasizes the most frequently misspelled words. It shows you the proper spelling for these troublesome words and gives you simple rules to help eliminate future spelling mistakes once and for all.

Perfect Punctuation — Knowing about 12 principles of punctuation can virtually eliminate embarrassing mistakes. This book covers the period, question mark, exclamation point, dash, hyphen, apostrophe, comma, semicolon, colon, parenthesis and much more. Correct and clear writing is impossible without proper punctuation.

Perfect Pronunciation — About 93 words are commonly mispronounced or misused. This book emphasizes frequently mispronounced and misused words. It gives you simple rules to help make sure you never make mistakes in pronunciation, use, or diction. Having command of the English language instills self-confidence and earns the respect of others.

This book is being made available for only $12.95 plus $3 postage and handling. To order simply send name and address with payment to: United Research Publishers, 103 North Highway 101, Dept. WE-66 Encinitas, CA 92024. You can return the book within 30 days for a full refund if not

Dentist won't treat vampire with AIDS

. . . so the blood-sucker sues him!

European Press Agency

BUDAPEST, Hungary — A starving vampire with a mouthful of painful cavities is suing his dentist — who won't treat him because he's afraid of getting AIDS.

Vladimir Gaftone says he will develop life-threatening infections very soon if he can't get his teeth worked on — especially the two fangs he uses to drain blood from his victims.

"My dentist has very specialized equipment for working on my kind of teeth," says Gaftone, his voice weakened from the lack of bloody nutrition.

"There's no other dentist in all of Eastern Europe with this equipment. I must see him or I will die," the vanishing vampire says.

"I'm not going anywhere near his mouth," counters Dr. Hubert Meden. "With all the people he's put the bite on, he's sure to have AIDS.

"Now with all the publicity, if my other patients found out I treated a vampire with AIDS, I'd be out of business."

The 37-year-old vampire works as a headwaiter. "The job is ideal because of the hours and I get to look over potential victims.

"My teeth began to get bad when I was careless about my victims. I attacked too many people with diabetes and now I have many cavities in my teeth. I guess I have a sweet tooth, too."

DR. Hubert Meden wouldn't touch him with a 10-ft. pole.

Gaftone said the cavities in his two front incisors, or fangs, are the most crucial. They prevent him from sucking the blood of his victims. "I can't get a suction — no vacuum," he explained.

Now he experiences great pain and says drinking blood by the glass makes him sick.

"I would like to help him," Dr. Meden said, "but I don't dare."

Gaftone is suing for the equivalent of $500,000.

He says that if he wins the lawsuit in time, he will be able to buy the needed specialized dental equipment and find a willing dentist of his own.

Haircuts cost lawmen $100G

Lawmen shaved the heads of four people arrested for demonstrating against tree cutting in a California forest — and it's going to cost the cops $100,000.

Humboldt County sheriff's deputies claim they shaved the prisoners' heads because they had lice, but the ACLU didn't believe that and filed suit on the inmates' behalf.

The sheriff's office agreed to a $100,000 out-of-court settlement.

MAN BLOWS SMOKE OUT OF HOLE IN HIS BACK!

Joe Weaver was born with a gaping four-inch hole in his back but he puts the defect to good use — by charging people a dollar a pop to see him blow smoke out of it!

"To tell you the truth, it's the only reason I buy cigarettes," said the 53-year-old truck driver from Atlanta. "I'm not sure what the allure is but people just love to see me blow smoke through the hole in my back.

"You'd think they'd have better things to do but they don't — and I've cashed in on them since I was a kid," said Weaver.

Weaver's astonishing defect alarmed doctors and his parents when he was born in 1938 but they didn't try corrective surgery because money was tight and the defect, though hideous, didn't pose a threat to his life.

The hole in his flesh connects to a hole in his right lung and as strange as it might sound, that enables him to breathe through his back as easily as a normal person breathes through his nose.

Because dust, dirt and water can clog the hole Weaver usually covers it with gauze. In addition to blowing smoke through it, he often delights observers by blowing out candles and playing a harmonica that's held tightly against the hole.

"A lot of kids made fun of me when I was growing up but I'm a happy-go-lucky kind of guy and it didn't bother me a bit," said Weaver.

"I've never thought of myself as a freak or anything like that.

"I figured the Good Lord put this hole in my back for a reason and I never saw the need to question the wisdom of His ways."

AMAZING Joe Weaver takes his bizarre talent in stride.

Widow kept her dead hubby in front of the TV

By JOE BERGER
Staff writer

Lonely oldster Betty Jeffrey couldn't bear to part with her beloved hubby Albert when he died, so she kept his mummified body in her apartment for three tear-filled years — propped in a chair in front of the TV!

Maintenance men who entered the apartment to fix a water leak found the long-gone gramps neatly dressed in a blue satin smoking jacket, his blank eyes fixed on a rerun of Twilight Zone.

"It's his favorite program," Betty, 72, told the horrified repairmen.

Shell-shocked cops in Hackney, England, said ailing Albert apparently died of a stroke in the couple's high-rise apartment at the age of 88.

The brokenhearted widow hoisted him into their comfiest chair, dolled him up in his best smoking jacket, smoothed a warm blanket over his bony knees — and left him there in all his grisly glory.

When curious neighbors asked about her hubby's health, Betty's stock reply was, "He's doing better. He'll be up and around soon."

And she continued to pick up her late mate's monthly

But the creepy charade came to an end when a water leak on the floor below sent unsuspecting workmen to Betty's apartment to check the plumbing.

When no one answered their knock, the men walked in and found emaciated Albert propped in his chair, his eyes glued to Twilight Zone.

"I knew something was wrong right off," one of the repairmen told police. "His wife said he was watching his favorite show. But then I walked up and touched him — and his head fell off on the floor."

The stunned plumbers rushed out and called police.

"We couldn't believe it when we saw it," said Inspector Ian Malone. "She was living with a corpse and just carrying on her life like nothing had happened."

The weird widow has been placed in the care of social workers.

Boozed-up bachelor's night on the town

DRUNK KIDNAPS ZOO'S PENGUIN

Bachelor Albie Chacon

He wakes up with a hangover — and a big bird in his bed!

By JOE BERGER
Staff writer

Booze-happy bachelor Albie Chacon got drunk as a skunk and woke up with the kookiest, cuddliest bedmate he'd ever laid eyes on — a persnickety penguin named Pedro!

"I came to with the worst headache of my life and there he was, waddling around on the bed like he owned the place," said flabbergasted Albie, 31.

"I was in pretty bad shape, so I had to blink my eyes a few times to make sure he was really there. Then the whole soedid story started coming back to me, and suddenly I didn't know whether to laugh or cry."

The bizarre tale of the penguin and the pickled plumber began the night before when hell-raising Albie went out to wet his whistle with some pals and wound up stewed to the gills.

"We'd been in this joint maybe six or seven hours when all of a sudden they decided to boot us out and close up," the bleary-eyed reveler told reporters in Barcelona, Spain.

"Everybody else went home, and I decided to wander down by the zoo to see what was happening. But when I got there, the zoo was locked up tight as a drum, of course."

So plastered Albie climbed a tree to peek over the fence — and toppled into the penguin compound.

"I was lying there dazed, and this cute little penguin ran up and started squawking at me like I'd done something real naughty," groaned the black-and-blue boozer.

"I was dying for some company, so I said, 'Hey, little buddy, let's me and you get out of here.' Then I picked him up and climbed back over the fence and took him home.

"I was sitting on the bed having a great conversation with him, and suddenly I passed out cold."

When pie-eyed Albie woke up and discovered he was sharing his bed with a pesky penguin, he phoned a friend and told him to rush over some fish for his new roomie's breakfast.

"But poor Pedro wouldn't eat a bite," the bewildered tippler recalled. "He just ran around and flipped his flippers and made strange noises.

"He seemed to be getting scareder by the minute, so I decided I had to take him back to the zoo. And when we got there, a keeper ran out yelling, 'Pedro, Pedro, Pedro.'

"They were so happy to see each other, I was really glad I took him home."

The flustered plumber's mood changed hours later when cops showed up at his door and charged him with penguin pilfering. But when he pleaded guilty to the dastardly crime, a judge fined him just $50.

"He let me off easy because the zoo man told him I took good care of their penguin and the little guy really liked me a lot," tickled Albie told reporters.

New invention lets you listen to the sound of time passing

By PHIL GLEASON
Correspondent

A leading physicist says time sounds like a washing machine as it flows endlessly through space but here's the clincher — he's actually developed a special receiver that picks it up and plays it like music through ordinary stereo speakers!

To top it off, Dr. Andre Pretet hopes to have a home version of his Aural Time Mirror on the market by Christmas for well under $500.

"Once you've heard the passing of time you'll never want to listen to ordinary music again," declared the physicist, who is best known for his scholarly articles but has also written several popular books, including the runaway European best-seller: Reality Wheels, Time Boxes and the Subatomic Bomb.

"The basic sounds are identical to those made by a washing machine but the vibrancy and richness is beyond description," he continued.

"It's as if all of history has been converted and compressed into a single song — the song of eternity."

Dr. Pretet is widely recognized as one of the 20th century's most dynamic and influential physicists in spite of his offbeat and often controversial theories, including the notion that time exists in not one, but two, dimensions.

He also believes that the universe began and ended at the same instant, which means that time simultaneously runs forwards and backwards.

"I'm not at liberty to discuss the technology that led to the development of the Aural Time Mirror but suffice it to say that the never-ending collision of future and past is what gives time its machine-like 'kerchugga, kerchugga' sound," Dr. Pretet told reporters at a press conference in Paris.

PRETTY VICTIM FACES FIEND WHO RAPED HER — & FORGIVES HIM!

Victim meets with and forgives rapist

Brandon, the man who molested and raped her

A LOCAL newspaper covered the dramatic meeting between Jane Levine and her attacker.

By SUSAN JIMISON
Staff writer

Anguished rape victim Jane Levine suffered through a terrifying 12-hour sex attack that she says destroyed her life. But after her vicious assailant was caught and jailed, the amazing woman forgave him!

Jane, 46, actually went to the county jail in Tampa, Fla., to visit her tormenter, convicted killer and rapist William Branshaw, 38. Incredibly, the two discussed the rape, then touched hands and declared a "truce."

"He said he was very sorry he had caused me pain and sorrow and that he had destroyed so many people's lives," explained the pretty blonde in an exclusive interview with The NEWS. "We created peace between two enemies. We made a truce and we walked away."

Jane was kidnapped by Branshaw in 1989 while she and a male friend were walking along a populated causeway at about 10:00 p.m. Branshaw stabbed Jane's friend and robbed him, then forced Jane to accompany him.

Over the next few hours, he raped Jane repeatedly. And every moment her ordeal went on, Jane feared for her life.

"It was like I had come face to face with Satan," Jane recalls. "His eyes — I've never seen such anger in my life. I was terrified.

"He held a knife on me and threatened to slit my throat. I said, 'I'll do whatever you want, but I just want to see my son's face again.' He said, 'We'll see.' I really believed this man was going to kill me."

Jane's instinct was right — Branshaw was indeed a killer. By the time he was captured, he had murdered another woman and a teenage boy with a baseball bat.

To save herself, the pretty waitress talked to Branshaw constantly, telling him about her life, her troubles, her past. She spoke to him of the power of God and His forgiveness.

'He told me he was sorry'

"I saw deep within that monster a child that was very alone, sad, and needed to be loved," she said. "I prayed harder than I've prayed in my life. I really believed this man was going to kill me, but I was outwardly calm and peaceful.

"I kept talking to him, telling him he could change. He began to see me as a person. He related to me."

In the end, Branshaw decided against killing Jane, tying her up and abandoning her in a motel room instead. He fled Florida hours later but was eventually caught and in April 1991, he was returned to Tampa for trial.

Jane cooperated with prosecutors to put Branshaw behind bars and was relieved when he received three consecutive life and made that request a part of his plea bargain agreement.

"I wanted to face my fears," she says. "It was the one last piece that would help me to heal, to close the book. I had to know what kept him from murdering me. And I wanted to know if I'd brought God to him."

On July 18, Jane got her wish. She went to the visiting room at Hillsborough County Jail and spoke through a glass partition with Branshaw.

"He apologized to me," she recalled. "He said that I had a very profound effect on him on a spiritual level. When he raped me he didn't believe in God or in good and evil. Now I think he sees it.

"When I walked out of that jail, I really forgave him. There was no malice in my

Man's bizarre medical condition

A werewolf's on the loose in London

LONDON — They call Bill Ramsey the Werewolf of London but the soft-spoken handyman has no recollection of the wild animal-like rampages that have landed him in jail or psychiatric units three times in the past nine years!

"From what they say, I bare my teeth, drool at the mouth, snarl and snap and howl," said the 47-year-old father of three. "My life is a living hell. I go on all fours and my hands turn like the claws of a beast. I'm told I do incredible things, but I never seem to hurt myself."

Ramsey said he has turned into a werewolf three times in the last nine years.

Doctors now believe he suffers from lycanthropy, a rare condition in which the victim believes he is a wolf.

"Why this terrible thing happens to me, I don't know," said Ramsey. "If I could take a pill to stop it, I would. I can't take much more of this."

Ramsey's bizarre medical condition suddenly became public when a terrified prostitute burst into a police station in Southend, England, a seaside resort town near London, in 1987.

The screaming woman reported a man outside snarling and howling like a dog.

When cops brought Ramsey inside for questioning, he went berserk. "It was the most frightening thing I've ever seen," police superintendent Charles Harper said.

"He snarled, howled, foamed at the mouth, curled his lips back and leaped at my men with hands and fingers that looked like the claws of an animal." During the half-hour siege, Ramsey hurled cops through the air, tore the station apart and smashed his head through a thick wooden door before he was injected with a powerful sedative and subdued.

EIGHT COPS CATCH CRAZED WEREWOLF

The NEWS reported Ramsey's encounter with cops in 1987.

"I only know what happened from what they told me and what I read in the newspapers," said Ramsey, who was ordered to undergo psychiatric evaluation at Runwell Hospital in Wickford.

"This only happens once in a blue moon," he said. "It only lasts about 20 minutes."

Ramsey said he's been told he bears a chilling resemblance to the mythical werewolf depicted in horror films, but he shrugs it off. "I've always looked this way," he said. "There's not a lot I can do about it."

Ramsey said the recent episode was his third since 1981, when he tried to bite a friend.

During the second incident Ramsey destroyed a hospital ward in 1984 and was subdued by nine cops.

Ramsey said the attacks come with little warning.

"I get butterflies in my stomach and I start shaking. I feel cold and terrified. Then

REAL WEREWOLVES aren't as easily identified as movie werewolf Lon Chaney, above.

How you can tell if

Werewolves live among us today, but unless you know what to look for they are impossible to identify.

Except when they are suffering an attack of the rare illness that turns them into crazed beasts, they look just like any of your friends or neighbors, experts say.

Dr. Werner Bokelman, an Austrian anthropologist who has studied werewolves for 36 years, has developed a test to help identify the werewolves among us.

Here are 10 ways you can tell if your friend or neighbor is a werewolf.

- Does he smell like a mixture of stale hay and horse manure? Werewolves have extra glands that emit nasty smells.
- Does he have eyebrows that meet in the middle of his forehead? Doctors in Denmark say that's a certain sign of the beast inside. Werewolves' arms, legs and bodies are extremely hairy, especially the backs of their hands and the tops of their feet.
- Does a neighbor's child

the next thing I know, I wake up."

Ramsey acknowledged that doctors have diagnosed his condition as lycanthropy, but he knows little about the rare illness.

"I know it is someone who behaves just like a wolf, and that's what I do," he said.

WHEN cops tried to restrain Bill Ramsey in 1987, he went berserk and attacked them, snarling, howling and foaming at the mouth.

your neighbor's a werewolf seem unusually attracted to little girls by the age of 7 or 8? Werewolves reach sexual maturity at that age.

● Is his ring finger on both hands longer than his middle finger? Experts say that is a sure sign he is a werewolf.

● Does he have an enormous appetite and large pets that often disappear and are replaced by other large pets? Werewolves like to sink their fangs into large animals.

● Do you hear strange howling, barking and moaning in your neighborhood when there is a full moon and no dogs around? If so, you're living close to a werewolf.

● Does his skin slowly change color? It takes only a few hours for a werewolf to change from human to animal form. The first sign is a gradual darkening of the skin.

● Does he wander around graveyards, mortuaries or turn up at the scene of fatal accidents? Corpses are a ready source of nourishment for young werewolves.

● Is his blood bluish red

If you can trust yourself to be alone with a suspected werewolf in the daytime, try to find out without being too obvious. Perhaps following him into the men's room is a good idea — but be careful.

● Does he suffer from unexplained injuries? When a werewolf is hurt in his animal form, the injuries remain in the human form.

Only a silver bullet through the heart can kill a werewolf. But if his body isn't burned at the stake, he'll turn into a Cow-abunga dude!

A nuzzle's not so bad, but freckle-faced Blake Ispell knows a big, sloppy kiss usually comes next so he's bracing for the bossy's big buss. The 9-year-old boy was unloading the Hereford steer from his dad's truck at a county fair in Livingston, Mont., when the affectionate critter moo-ved in for a s-moo-ch.

Ghouls dig up corpse and beat it to a pulp!

A couple of creeps dug up the body of a 97-year-old woman — and viciously beat the hell out of it!

Investigators in Wellington, New Zealand, are still trying to round up suspects in the bizarre case and haven't the faintest idea why anyone would want to rough up a corpse.

Talk like a carny!

"Hey! Hurry Johnny! Drop the plush and slum and come help with a signal 40 at the roller coaster whoop-de-doo."

Most folks might not understand that, but amusement park workers do. They have their own special lingo, and here are some examples:

- Plush: The high-end prizes given to game winners.
- Slum: Cheapo prizes.
- Whoop-de-doo: Most thrilling section of a ride, such as a corkscrew loop on a roller coaster.
- Signal 40: Radio code for vomit, as in "We've got a Signal 40 at the Rotor."

SMALL TALK with Robert Jackson costs

Man gets personal 900 number!

He makes big bucks every time his buddies call

By ROGER BAER
Special to The NEWS

Robert Jackson got himself a 900 number to cash in on calls from his friends. And believe it or not, the 32-year-old carpenter has raked in a cool $3,000 since he had the special phone line installed in his home last spring.

"If you want to talk to me on the phone it'll cost you $2 for the first minute and 75 cents a minute after that," Jackson told a reporter who phoned him with an interview request.

have a big head. But life is a business and time is money and I'm not about to give anything away for free.

"I'm surprised that everybody doesn't have one of these lines," he added. "It eliminates nuisance calls and friends don't bug you unless they have something important to say."

Jackson decided to get a 900 number after he phoned one to get his daily horoscope and wound up paying $2.50 for the call.

"The bill didn't bother me because I wanted the service," he said from his home in Los Angeles. "But the began to wish that I had a 900 number myself.

"Needless to say I got one and I've been making the bucks ever since — about $3,000 the last time I checked. It's the easiest money I've ever made."

It's not known how many individuals have 900 numbers but Jackson may well be the first. Officials don't see many people following in his footsteps, however, because most wouldn't get calls from friends, relatives or anybody else if they charged for their time on the line.

CONVICTED sex offender William Rogers has been charged with hiring a hit man to kill his daughter.

Evil dad plotted to kill his daughter with a car bomb!

By FRED WRIGHT/Staff writer

BRISTOL, Conn. — A coldhearted father, already facing charges of sexually assaulting his 15-year-old daughter, reportedly tried to shut her up — by planting a bomb in her car!

And the dirty-minded dad might have gotten away with it except that the assassin he thought he was hiring was actually a federal agent working undercover.

Police say William S. Rogers agreed to pay $3,000 to Richard Coccaro for a bomb that would blow up his daughter's car. What Rogers didn't know was that Coccaro was a special agent for the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

The would-be killer got his bomb, all right — a dud, made by the feds from a blasting cap and C-4 plastic explosive.

Police had been tipped off that Rogers was looking for a hit man to kill his teenage daughter, who is set to testify against her dad on charges he sexually assaulted her.

The filthy-minded father had already been convicted of sexual assault and risk of injury to a minor back in 1983. He received a slap-on-the-wrist one-year suspended sentence and three years' probation.

This time he's been charged with soliciting to commit a crime of violence and use of interstate commerce in the commission of murder for hire.

Fantasize — and feel better!

Fantasizing while making love is good for you and perfectly normal, says a psychology professor.

Eighty-five percent of the people surveyed said they fantasize during sex and one in four said they do so often.

Many people think about their actual lover as they make whoopee while some fantasize about an attractive stranger, according to Dr. Harold Leitenberg, professor of psychology at the University of Vermont in Burlington.

Nearly 75 percent of those surveyed said their thoughts were "bizarre."

GHOST SHIP was headed for Germany when it broke loose from tugs near Cape Verde.

Freighter crew vanishes while crossing Atlantic!

A terrible act of man or nature snatched away the crew of a derelict freighter and now the fate of 21 men has become one of the most bizarre mysteries of the sea!

In the six weeks since the 512-foot, 12,000-ton Panamanian freighter MV Sabina Star went hard aground on a deserted beach near Tripoli, Libya, investigators have uncovered no clue to the fate of its crew.

But there is grim evidence that whatever disaster struck the freighter came swiftly, probably without any warning and left no one aboard to tell the harrowing story.

Adding to the baffling mystery is the startling fact that the Sabina Star was still afloat.

It had been missing for three months and presumed lost at sea. Under the tow of two ocean-going tugs, the freighter had left Rio de Janeiro in January, bound for Kiel, Germany, for extensive refitting.

But battered by gale-force winds off Cape Verde, the Sabina Star broke its towlines and drifted off.

An air search the next day floating debris. But three months later, Libyan soldiers patrolling the Mediterranean beaches west of Tripoli watched in awe as the rusting hulk of the lost ship emerged slowly from the morning mist.

"The vessel drove onto the beach and became stuck," Army spokesman Major Ali Al-Mariya said.

"Not a soul got off the freighter before the soldiers arrived, and absolutely no one left after they got there. Later, the beached vessel was searched thoroughly in every compartment and no one was found to be aboard.

"It would seem that the vessel was on the top deck, perhaps preparing to abandon ship, and all were washed overboard!"

Such a scenario would be highly plausible — except for the bizarre evidence that far greater calamity struck the ship. When soldiers searched the Sabina Star, here is what they found:

- A meal, half-eaten, was laid out in the seamen's dining room!
- A more lavish meal in the officers' mess had not been touched!
- A deep gouge, about six inches wide, traveled the entire length of the freighter's starboard side!
- A severed finger was found in the wheelhouse. A gold ring on the finger bore the inscription "Gretchen-1942-Love" in German!
- And the deck, forward of the bridge, was littered with seaweed and dead fish!

"We don't know what happened," the spokesman admitted.

DEAD GRANNY HELD HOSTAGE TILL FAMILY PAYS HER PARKING FINES!

By JOE BERGER/Staff writer

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — Cantankerous granny Cristina Casini keeled over dead in the street and cops hauled her body off to the hoosegow — vowing to keep the corpse till her kinfolk fork over $519 to pay her overdue parking tickets!

Now, Cristina's furious family is suing the city to retrieve her remains so they can finally lay the ornery oldster to rest. "Those lousy cops have kidnapped Grandma's body and they're holding it for ransom, pure and simple," fumed disgusted Dr. Salvator Casini, 30.

"They couldn't catch up with the old gal when she was alive because she was too smart for them. So they're trying to get even, now that she's dead and can't fight back."

Crusty Cristina, 88, had been racking up parking tickets from one end of town to the other for years — and never paid a nickel in fines.

"That old lady thought she didn't have to play by the same rules as everybody else," said peeved police investigator Enrique Dascetto.

"She'd park that big car of hers any place she wanted to, any time she wanted to. And when she'd get a ticket on her windshield, she'd just rip it up and flip it in the gutter."

Outraged authorities hauled the wealthy widow into court five times over the years, but clever Cristina always managed to slip through their fingers.

"She was a nasty, spiteful old woman, but she always came off sounding sweet and a little befuddled when she got into court," Detective Dascetto recalled.

"She'd get all misty-eyed, and there was no judge in the world who would dream of sending her to jail.

"They'd tell her to be sure to mail in her fines and send her away with a smile. So she'd walk out and hop in her big car and roar away cackling like a hen."

Then one day, crotchety Cristina collapsed and died on the sidewalk a block from her home — and cops finally got their chance to lock her up.

"Call us meanies if you want to, but we're doing this for all the people who pay their fines like they're supposed to," said frustrated station commander Carlos Perez. "The lady's body is okay — we've had her properly embalmed. Now we plan to keep her on ice till the family pays up her tickets and the cost of embalming."

Handcuffed pothead eats the evidence

A traffic cop stopped a motorist for speeding, then found several marijuana butts in a box on the passenger's seat. But he had to let him off with just a ticket — because the bad guy ate the evidence!

After finding the illegal butts, the cop ordered the man out of the car, cuffed him and made him drape himself over the hood of the car in Nice, France.

Then the lamebrained cop put the marijuana butts on the hood. That was a colossal blunder. As the cop finished writing the ticket he had started, the clever doper gobbled up the butts, one after the other.

When a patrol supervisor arrived and learned what had happened to the vital evidence, he had no alternative but to let the motorist go.

"That's the most embarrassing thing that's ever happened to me. Next time I'll be more careful," said the red-faced patrolman.

PLOVDIV, Bulgaria — A doctor who operated on 84 patients in three years — and lost every one of them — is still allowed to treat the sick, thanks to family connections and government red tape.

Branded as "Dr. Oops" by snickering nurses and other hospital staff, Dr. Olev Byorgor continues in his position at the Institute for Human Medicine.

Dr. Byorgor, a mild-mannered and pleasant 34-year-old man and former national weight-lifting champion, may well be the worst and most deadly doctor practicing medicine in the world today. His horrifying record as a surgeon reads like a chapter out of the simple, as a tonsillectomy, or defenders blame the deaths on bad luck or errors on the parts of nurses assisting him," said an article in the crusading newspaper Liberty.

"But nobody's luck is that bad. One patient, a 33-year-old housewife, saw him for a mole she had on her right breast. Dr. Byorgor removed the tissue in his office using a local painkiller. The poor woman should have been able to walk out within minutes. Instead, she went into shock, then lapsed into a coma and died five days later."

Dr. Byorgor's bloodcurdling surgical record only came to light thanks to the article in the outspoken paper. According to that article, the doctor up due to his brother-in-law, a top official with the national health ministry. Also, state laws make it nearly impossible to dismiss a physician.

He spent three extra years in medical school repeating courses he'd failed before he was allowed to graduate.

Luckily, hospital administrators have managed to limit Dr. Byorgor's stints with the scalpel. After 51 deaths in his first six months of practice, the doctor has been limited to only 33 operations over the past 2½ years. However, these have ended in tragedy.

"One old man reportedly jumped from a second-story hospital window when he was Chopper lands in the wrong country!

A rookie helicopter pilot buzzing around England made a wrong turn at the North Sea — and ended up in the Netherlands.

"I feel a bit silly," said copter pilot Ian Muir, 30, who had to take a ferry back to England and hire a pilot to return the copter.

Muir had planned a 100-mile trip around England, but decided to turn around and go home because of faulty navigation equipment.

Instead, the confused pilot flew the R22 Beta east across the North Sea. He blamed his goof on bad weather and thick cloud cover.

The mixed-up pilot didn't know where he was until he flew low enough to see expressway signs written in Dutch.

He landed in a gas station parking lot near the Dutch village of Pijnacker, 225 miles from where he started.
